

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

The house of Elamma contained about thirty texts related to a certain Ennam-Suen, letters written to and by him (alone or with others), legal documents, in which he is the key figure, as party in a conflict, as guarantor, and as creditor or debtor. In most cases the name of his father is not mentioned and the assumption that these texts concern the same man rests for several of them on their subject matter and the persons involved, and for all of them on the fact that they were found in the same house. As their excavation numbers, ranging from Kt 92/k 94 to 187, show (only *228 was found in 1991), they were discovered in 1992, according to Tahsin Özgüç's letter to me "collapsed on the floor of the south side of the second room". He adds that "they enabled us to describe the presence of a new Assyrian merchant", which most probably (he does not mention a name) refers to Ennam-Suen. The 1992 group, however, also comprises a fair number of records of Elamma and Lamassutum (letters, memorandums, etc., mainly those with excavations numbers between Kt 92/k 142-162), which suggests that there were (at least) two different groups or files, probably arranged as such on shelves, which were mixed up due to their collapse on the floor. Data on the remains of containers or exact find spots to confirm this idea are not available.

Ennam-Suen was a very popular name and we know some forty different men so named. Only two texts of our group give the name of his father, Amur-Šamaš in *232:4-8, where Ennam-Suen and his younger brother Āl-ṭāb appear as debtors of an unnamed creditor, and in *233:7-8, a quittance for a debt Ennam-Suen owed to Iḫam-kurub.¹ Their subject matter does not link up with that of the other texts, but if Āl-ṭāb was indeed the brother of "our" Ennam-Suen, it becomes understandable why he acted as his guarantor in *226 during eponymy year 82,² which is only one year later than *232. The dated occurrences of Ennam-Suen in our file, always in debt-notes, eponymy years 82 (*229), 92 (*230), 96 (*231), and 99 (*228), have a time range which is entirely possible for one single trader. Moreover, the excavation numbers of the two texts mentioning his father, Kt 92/k 163(*233) and 164(*232) link them with other 'Ennam-Suen texts', which makes it likely that the same Ennam-Suen, son of Amur-Šamaš, is meant in all of them. While the quittance *233 would normally belong to the debtor's archive, the debt-note *232 in its envelope would be expected in that of the creditor.

An Ennam-Suen occurs four times in the lists of textiles published in Ch. XX, regularly together with Iddin-Suen, Šu-līštar, Aššur-rē'ī and a few others, the first two of which also feature among his correspondents in the letters published in this chapter. This suggests that the Ennam-Suen in both groups is the same person. In the ¹ The creditor had apparently died and the debt was paid to a man representing his sons. The only other occurrence of Ennam-Suen, son of Amur-Šamaš, is in the undated TC 2, 76 (= EL 76): 14-15, where he figures as witness.

² The name of his brother, Āl-ṭāb, was also rather frequent and in our small file we meet it also in *223:2, *224:5, *225:2, *226:7 (he had a house in Assur), and *228:5 ("sons of Āl-ṭāb", during eponymy year REL 82 and therefore not the sons of Ennam-Suen's brother). The Āl-ṭāb for whom Ennam-Suen and Amur-šamšī were guarantors sealed the envelope of *226 and his seal, by elimination, must be CS 1251, but no second impression of this seal has thus far been identified

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

comments on the textile lists I argued that they probably deal with substantial lots of textiles belonging to traders who had cooperated in a joint caravan (ellutum), which arrived in Kanesh and were cleared in the palace. The Ennam-Suen of this chapter probably is also the one who in *219:9-10 (a letter of Aššur-imittī to Ennam-Aššur) is involved in the settlement of a problem concerning a lot of textiles. Other occurrences of an Ennam-Suen in texts of the 1992 group, without mention of his father's name, such as *245:8 (witness to a seizure by Šu-lštar of silver belonging to Bēlum-rabi), do not allow conclusions on his identity. In particular not because in our group we twice meet a different Ennam-Suen, who is the son of Aššur-ṭāb. In *279:17-18 he testifies before the Wahšušana colony about a settlement of accounts between two traders, and in *284:16-17 he witnesses Ṭāb-šilli-Aššur's "seizure" of Šu-Suen.

No person with the name Ennam-Suen occurs among Elamma's relatives or his well-known business partners, investors or agents, but in the texts excavated in 1991 at least five Ennam-Suens occur:

E. son of Ennam-Aššur, witness in *298 during the year REL 108. Outside the archive as witness also in Kt 91/k 127A:1 (an undated quittance) and AKT 6-b, 489:2. According to TPAK I, 156 he was redeemed from an Anatolian (creditor?) by Šuppianiga, whom he has to serve for the next five years.

E. son of Ikua, in *228, during the year REL 98, is creditor of two traders, who owe him 2 minas 44 shekels of silver. He is witness in AKT 6-a, 251:32 and involved in a conflict with Ilabrat-bāni during the year REL 91 in Kt a/k 977.

E. son of Kurkurānum, in *49 sealer of an unopened envelope that contains a tablet about the "declared value" (awītum) of merchandise of him, Susāya, son of Isihum, and Elamma, which reflects the shipment of their goods in a joint caravan (ellutum).

E. son of Sukkaliya, acts as witness in *57:3, a debt-note probably from the year REL 88, recording a claim of Elamma on Išū-rabi. In KTK 79:4 = EL 66 his son Aššur-mālik figures as creditor in the year REL 106.

E. son of Šu-lštar, occurs in *195:22, a letter of Ir'am-Aššur, in which he mentions tablets of his recording his indebtedness to Innāya, Ennam-Suen, son of Šu-lštar, and Aššur-mālik.³ He is the best known Ennam-Suen, who functions twice as week-eponym in year REL 108, and probably as year eponym in REL 115, and who appears as a trader who transports silver and merchandise (ATHE 19:4-5; Ka 1004:18-19, šēp E.), and as creditor (TC 2, 16:4).

It is impossible to identify one of them as a man whose close relationship with Elamma could account for the presence of his tablets in Elamma's archive. Witnessing a debt-note may be due to a relation with its creditor, but not necessarily so, and cooperation in a joint caravan (ellutum), "an organizational form for joint conveyance of merchandise" by "groups formed on an ad hoc basis" (OAI 167f.), does not prove a lasting partnership. This applies also to *53, whose anonymous writer (who could be Elamma) states that he will collect an amount of silver as "one third share (šalšātum) in the caravan of Ennam-Suen".

Most other occurrences of an Ennam-Suen in texts from Elamma's archive also prove little. In *209:4 he is witness for a debt with Šalimma as creditor, in *251 he acts together with Muti-Aššur as judge in a conflict between Aššur-mālik and Šū-Bēlum, and in *76:10-13 // *77: 5-10 (see the comments on these texts) we meet an Ennam-Suen indebted for two amounts of copper to the anonymous writer of these texts. Most promising is *164:28-30, which mentions that Ištar-pilah, Ennam-Suen and Maši-ilī as Lamassutum's representatives will see to the conveyance of what she bequeathed to Assur. This responsible task suggests a relationship, in particular with Elamma's widow, who still lived in Kanesh. A hypothetical explanation, if our Ennam-Suen was the son of Šu-Ištar, is that at some time, perhaps when he went back to Assur to become līmum in year REL 115, boxes with tablets of his were deposited in Elamma's house (ana nabšēm ezābum), but this is difficult to prove. We can only study the texts as they have been preserved. They show him to have been an active trader, especially as owner of lots of textiles, and it is interesting that he occurs in these records together with Iddin-Suen and Šu-Ištar, who also figure in his other texts, notably in letters to and from him. The dates of these and other texts in which he occurs range (if indeed all concern the same man) from the year REL 82 to the years after Lamassutum's death, which anyhow makes it impossible to identify the just mentioned Iddin-Suen with Elamma's father of that name.

³ Kt 94/k 180 (courtesy of C. Michel) is a quittance for a silver debt owed by Ir'am-Aššur to Šu-lštar, but due to damage the amount and the date are missing.

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

A. Letters (211-219)

From Iddin-Suen to Ennam-Suen alone and with or to others

211. Kt 92/k 102 (1-64-92)

This letter is closely related to *212, where Ilī-bāni and Abi[la?] figure as co-addressees, but all direct speech uses the 2nd person singular and is addressed to Enna-Suen, so that the role of the co-addressees remains unclear. The letters complement each other and this one shows that the "goods" (unūtum) mentioned in *212:4-6 consists of tin given as "balance payment". Both also mention a fine textile made for and sent to the writer by his sister, which Ennam-Suen has held back. The writer is angry about Ennam-Suen's behavior and his emotion affects the syntax and lexicon, which makes the translation and interpretation difficult, apart from the fact that the tablet has suffered some damage. Both letters must have been sent about the same time and *212 apparently tried to solicit the support of the two co-addressees to solve the problem.

um-ma l-dí-Sú-in-<ma> a-na
 En-na-Sú-in qí-bi₄-ma
 mi-šu ša ta-áš-pu-ra-ni
 um-ma a-ta-ma
 5 AN.NA a-na ni-ip-lá-/tim
 al-qe-ma 7 GÍN.TA
 a-na KÙ.B. pá-i
 a-dí-in AN.NA-kam
 [tù-u]b²-lá-šu-ma* tù-pá-té-er-šu
 10 tù-BA-li-ih šu-/ma
 rev. a-ta AN.NA a-na KÙ.B.
 ta-lá-qé-am mi-šum
 sú-ri : té-ta-na-pá-áš-ma
 ša tù-BA-li-hu li-bi₄
 15 ú-lá ma-ri-iš ù a-na

Thus Iddin-Suen
 say to Enna(m)-Suen:
 "Why did you write me
 as follows:
 'I took the tin as
 balance payment and I have promised a rate of 7 shekels to 1
 in silver.' You took along the tin
 and unpacked it,
 you have If you want to take tin for silver
 why do you keep practicing deceit so that I cannot fail to be angry because you have
 and angry

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

	KÙ.B. ša té-ri-šu-ni	too about the silver
	li-bi₄ ú-lá ma-ri-iš	that you requested?
	mì-šum TÚG ša a-ha-tí	Why have you held back
u.e.	a-na li-ta-áb-ší-a tù-šé-bi₄-lá-/ni	the garment my sister had 20	ta-ak-lá ù TÚG lu-bé-^orí[?]]*	sent me to wear? Send me also le.e.	[ša] ta-ak-lu-ú : šé-bi₄-lam	the garments that you held back,.
	[x] a-ta-al-kam-ma	[then] leave and come here
	x x KU x x x x*	 ”

Notes

9. The traces exclude [ta]-ak/[ta]k-lá-šu-ma, «you held it back»; the second x ends like UB.

10.14. Kouwenberg observes that a reading tupallih*, «you caused fear» (without personal object) is not obvious here and in *212:14. He refers me to a parallel in Kt 88 k/970:90-91 (Donbaz in Studies Darga, 212), maknakam ... tapturma u tuppē tu-BA-li-ha, «you opened the (sealed) strong room and the tablets», which seems to require a different verb, used in l. 14 without a direct object. I assume that in l. 14 ša tub/pallihu expresses the reason for the writer's anger. The verb must denote an unacceptable, illegal action.

18-22. Withholding the textiles sent to the writer is also mentioned in *212:21-22 and *213:8-10, which tell us that it concerned 3 kutānu-textiles and 1 Abarnian one, apparently the “soft one” of *212:15, meant for his personal wear.

20. TÚG lu-bé-[x (x)] must be the rare noun lubērum, mentioned in Michel – Veenhof 2010, 235, which also occurs in TPAK 1, 32:32 and 59:18.

212. Kt 92/k 112 (1-74-92)

A letter by Iddin-Suen to Ilī-bāni, Abila[?] and in particular to Ennam-Suen, closely related to the previous one.

	um-ma l-dí-Sú-in-ma	Thus Iddin-Suen
	a-na Ilī₅-ba-ni A-b[i-lá[?]]*	say to Ilī-bāni, Ab[ila [?]]
	ù En-na-Sú-in [qí-bi₄-mā]	and Enna(m)-Suen:
	i-na pá-na ú-nu-tí-[a[?]]	“I intended to deposit my goods
5	la₁-dí-a-am-ma mì-š[u]	at the start, so why
	ú-nu-tí-a ta-at-ba-al-m[a]	have you taken away my goods
	ni-kà-sí iš-tí-a	without having settled accounts
	ú-lá ta-sí ù u₄-ma-[am]	with me? And today you have
	lu-qú-tí x* ta-ar-de₈-^oa₂-/ma	taken along my merchandise
10	ku-nu-ke ša a-bi₄-/a	and the seals of my father
l.e.	ù um-mi-a-ni-a	and my investor(s), you have
rev.	ú-lá a-mu-ur ku-nu-ke	broken these seals without
	tù-pá-té-er-ma	me even having seen them and
	tu-BA-li-ih TÚG šu-ba-/tám	so have My sister
15	na-ar-ba-am a-ha-tí	sent me a soft garment,
	tù-šé-bi₄-lam a-ta TÚG	but you have retained
	ta-ak-ta-lá šu-ma a-šu-um	that garment. If, because of
	TÚG a-mi-e-im ki-ma (eras)	this textile, as if it were your

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

	ša a-bi₄-kà na-pá-áš-/ta-[ká[?]]	father's, I have not cut your throat,
20	lá a-ki-is mi-nam	what then do I owe you
	ha-bu-lá-ku-ma 3 TÚG šú-[ba-tí-a]	that you have kept back
u.e.	ta-ak-ta-lá ki-ma	3 textiles of mine? That [a-ta[?]] sà-ra-tí-ni-m[a]	 you are false(?) and le.e.	pu-ru-sà °i-dí₂*-ni a-na-ku	the judicial decision of 25	lá i-de₈-e mi-šum a-ta	would I not know that? Why have
	ú-nu-tí-a ta-at-°ba-a]	you taken away my goods?"

Notes

2. The second addressee is probably the Abila of *218:1.

4-5. The verb nadā'um is regularly used for "depositing" textiles in the colonial office, as investment in a collective transaction and this could be done in installments, in which connection also the adjective panium, «first, earlier», and the adverb ina pana, «in the first place», occur. Cf. Kt n/k 1618:5-11, 6 TUG.HI.A lū paniūtīm lū urkiūtīm ana (8) bēt kārim niddi 3 TÚG.TA ina pana (10) niddi ú 3 TÚG.HI urkiūtīm, "we deposited 6 textiles from an earlier and a later lot in the kārum office, 3 textiles per (person) at first/earlier and 3 textiles later". In Kt n/k 1153: 4-5 ippana is contrasted with warkānum. As the translation shows ina pana here cannot mean "formerly, in the past" (CAD P s.v. pana), but must refer to a first, earlier action contrasted with a later one. I assume the use of the precativum states the writer's intention to do so, which was frustrated by the action of his addressee; there is no evidence of the use of ina pana as conjunction, "(even) before I could.....". Unūtia, also in lines 6(?) and 26, instead of unūtī shows that the writer treats unūtum as if it were a plural noun.

10-12. The repetition of object kunukkē, of unūtia in lines 4-6 and of šubātam in lines 14-16 may be due to the emotional state of the writer.

14. Iddin-Suen also mentions the fear he experienced in *211:10, 14.

17. a-šu-um for a-šu-mi is unique, but the final sign (written over an erasure) seems to be UM.

18-20. One expects words expressing the writer's anger hyperbolically, such as "but for your father, I would have cut off [your] throat!", but the negated lā akkis, "I did not cut off", tells his addressee that he had restrained his anger.

23-24. Damaged and I cannot make sense of the words preserved. Purussa must be a construct state (the sign after ZA is no A[M]), but the following noun is unclear, its middle sign looks most like DÍ (i-lí-ni is not possible). I follow Kouwenberg's suggestion to take the sentence as a question, because of the plene writing of idê.

213. Kt 92/k 116 (1-78-92)

A letter on a small oblong tablet (3.6 x 4.3 cm) in which Iddin-Suen gives Ennam-Suen instructions involving a certain Hadiaššu, who is not known from other texts.

	um-ma l-dí-Sú-in-<ma>	Thus Iddin-Suen,
	a-na En-na-Sú-/in	say to Ennam-Suen:
	qí-bi₄-ma šú-ha-<šú>>-ra-am	"The boy who is
	ga-lá-ba-am	a barber
5	°Ha₂-dí-a-°šu* x₂*-ra-dé-am	Hadiaššu is leading to you.
	°dí-š]u-m[a* x₂* li-qí	Sell him and take,
	KÙ.B. ku-šu-ud	(and so) obtain silver.

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

	3 ku-ta-ni	The 3 kutānu -textiles
l.e.	ù TÚG a-bar-ni-am	and the Abarnian one
rev.	ša ta-ak-lu-/ú	that you kept back,
11	a-na Ha-dí-a-šu	give them to Hadiaššu
	dí-in-ma : lu-ub-lam	to bring them to me.
	a-dí : a-ma-kam	As long as you stay there
	wa-áš-ba-tí-ni sí-ku-/šu	you must hold him by 15	kà-[il₅] šu-ma	his hem. If he does
	lá i-lá-kam	not come
	kam

Notes

5-6. The reading Ha-di-a-šu, with the irregular use of the sign DI, normally used for sá, is suggested by line 11, where the name is spelled with DÍ. In l. 5 one would expect iradde'am, but x is not a damaged i.

9-10. This probably is the garment Iddin-Suen's sister had sent him, also mentioned in *211:18-20 and *212:14-16; the 3 textiles must be those mentioned in *211:20 and *212:21.

14-17. The person to be detained probably is Hadiasšu and he is probably also be the subject of illakam. L. 17 only has the sign KAM at the end.

A letter from Šarrum-kīn

214. Kt 92/k 94 (1-56-92)

A letter to Aššur-nādā, Suen-ilšu and Ennam-Suen by Šarrum-kīn. The issue is a conflict about textiles of one of the addressees, presumably the first one, who had accused the writer of having taken away textiles of his that were (had been deposited) in the writer's house. The writer denies this and tells that the palace itself, acting via four traders, is responsible. He has witnesses who can confirm this and wants to settle the conflict in an orderly way, by means of an oath and negotiations, if necessary after traveling to where his addressee lives.

	a-na A-šur-na-da Sú-in-il₅-šu*	To Aššur-nādā, Suen-ilšu,
	ù En-na-Su-in	and Ennam-Suen,
	qí-bi-ma um-ma MAŠ* LUGAL-ki-in-/ma	thus Šarrum-kīn:
	i-na Wa-áš-ha-ni-a	"When we met in
5	ni-na-me-er-ma um-ma	Wašhaniya you said:
	a-ta-ma TÚG.HI.A É.GAL-lúm	'It was not the palace that took
	ú-la it-ba-al a-ta-ma	the textiles away, it was you
	ta-at-ba-al-šu-nu	who took them away!'
	i-nu-mi ú-šé-ší-ú-ni	(But) when it removed them
10	a-na-ku lá-šu--ku : qá-tí	I was not present, the palace
	É.GAL-lim-ma : 4 DUMU um-mi-a-nim	itself seized four affiliated
	iš-ba-at-ma É-tí	traders and they searched
	ú-na-dí-du-ma TÚG.HI-tí-kà	my house and removed your textiles.
	ú-šé-ší-ú ũp-pá-am a-ší-/a-tí	Therefore I drew up
15	a-di-a-kum	a tablet for you

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

- l.e. ú ší-bé-a az-ku-ra-/kum
ší-bé-a a-na ba-áb / DINGIR
 rev. ú-šé-ra-da-ma
ṭup-pá-am ša ku-nu-ki-šu¹(KU)-nu
 20 *ša 4 : šu-nu-tí ta-lá¹(TAL)-qé
a-hi a-ta : ša a-wa-tim
né-nu šu-ma a-na ma-mi-tim
ta-pá-li-li mu-ru-úš
li-bi-kà a-na ša ki-/ma <ku-a-tí> 25 lá-pí-ta-ma
lu-ta-mi-ú-ni ṭup-pá-am
ša ku-nu-ki-a ša tù-kà-lu-/ú
a-na ša ki-ma i-a-tí
dí-in šu-ma la ta-da-an 30 ša-sí-hi-ma lu-ma
lá-li-kam ma-aš-a-/tí-ma
 u.e. a-ma-kam lu ni-ta-wu
- and I named you my witnesses.
 I am ready to lead my witnesses
 down to the gate of the god so that you can acquire a tablet with their seals, those of these four men.
 Please my brother, are we men to fight? If you wish to start a procedure to make me swear, write down you grievances for <your> representatives, so that they can make me swear. Give the tablet with my seal that you have in your possession to my representatives.
 If you do not want that, have me transferred here, so that I can come to swear. You have taken the responsibility, so let us discuss over there.

Notes

3. The usual meaning MAŠ = tū'imum, “twin” (logogram and syllabic writing alternate on CCT 6, 1a, tablet and case) does not fit, because this designation is used either alone (Puzur-šadu'e DUMU Tū'imim, CCT 2, 44b:5; TC 3, 99:21; CCT 6, 1a:2) or in apposition to a personal name (e.g. TPAK 1, 179:21-22), never preceding one.

6. It is not clear who of the three addressees is the main one addressed here.

20. The past tense tal-qé is strange after ušerradamma and must be a mistake for ta-lá-qé.

22-23. This is an informative description of a judicial oath procedure, designated by the words ana mamītim palālum + personal object, which uses a verb restricted to OA (CAD P, palālu B; see now OALP 364-367) and only attested in such contexts. The occurrences show that palālum could affect a party, but also the witnesses he might summon. In our text palālum was the initiative of a man who tried to force his opponent to accept this procedure. In the somewhat similar verdict TTC 4 = EL 339:10-12 a formal interrogation leads to suing one's opponent: “The attorney of P. and P.'s representatives will interrogate E. and he shall answer them (10) and where they are going to sue (him) they will palālum” (a-le / iše'ūni / ipallilū). RA 88 (1994) 122:30f., shows that this leads to an oath, “where we will palālum the attorney must make (him) swear an oath” (ašar ni-pá-li-lu rābišum / lutammī). The question remains whether this, expressed in our text by palālum ana mamītim, is (has to be) always the case. See also Veenhof, Lex., s.v.

Our letter mentions two possibilities for the palālum procedure:

a) The plaintiff writes a letter in which he states his grievances to his representatives in the place where his opponent lives, they can make him swear, in which case the resulting sealed tablet (with his testimony or acknowledgment) must be returned to the opponent's representatives, in the place where the plaintiff lives.

b) If this does not succeed, the plaintiff must “force the opponent to move” (nasāhum, Š-stem), to come to where the plaintiff lives, where he will swear the oath (lūmā). The writer adds lines 31-32, “I will come if you take responsibility and then we can discuss the matter there” (where you live). He uses the stative of the verb mašā'um, typical for expressing that a plaintiff, in an appeal to the authorities, is ready to accept the responsibility and bear the costs of the legal action undertaken, especially the forced transfer of a person who has to appear in court (cf. already OACC 257-259). The oath sworn (l. 30) is not the end of the proceedings, for it can be followed by a discussion (atwûm) on the basis of the contents of the oath and the facts so established, to solve the problem.

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

The wording of the oath was carefully formulated in advance, to cover the relevant issues and prevent a verbal escape, as shown by records that start with the statement: "Listen oh god, lord of the oath" (e.g. EL 284 = CCT 5, 14b). In Elamma's archive *287, a sealed, unopened envelope with the inscription "This is the tablet of the oath of K. son of A.", must have been such a case.⁴ I assume that in our letter the suggestion to write down "the grievances" in a letter had a double purpose: to state that and why the accused has to swear and to record the issues at stake, so that the representatives could carefully formulate what he had to swear.

Comment

Was the writer, called Šarrum-kīn, whose name is preceded by MAŠ, perhaps the (later) king Šarrum-kīn, who as prince at some time would have been present and active in Anatolia, in Wašhaniya? The issue of the letter is a conflict of the writer with one of the three addressees ("you", l. 6), who accuses him of having removed textiles from the house of the writer (l. 12). The writer rejects this accusation and states that the (local Anatolian) palace is responsible for it, during his absence. He mentions that it had used the service of four Assyrians, "affiliated traders" (lines 9-14), who had searched his house and removed the textiles. This is a remarkable procedure, which implies that the palace had a valid claim and had decided (or was authorized?) to realize it by using Assyrians, perhaps because they could read the sealings on the (bags with) textiles, to identify those of the man they were after. The writer is ready to provide his opponent with a written statement ("tablet") to that effect (l. 20), presumably (a copy of?) the testimony recorded under oath by these four witnesses, mentioned in lines 19f. If that is not enough he is ready to submit himself to a formal oath procedure, which should clear the facts and allow to solve the matter in a discussion (atwûm, l. 32).

Three letters from Šu-lštar: "Get rid of the maid!" (215-217)

The following three letters – the third one could be a second page or a letter without proper address – all deal with the same issue, a maid (amtum) who is wicked (raggaſ) and contracts debts, of whom the writer, who stays elsewhere, wants to get rid (halluqum). He describes what she has done and asks Ennam-Suen, alone in *217 and together with Kukua and Ušur-ša-Aššur in *216, and presumably also in *218 (address missing), men who live in Kanesh ("there") where the maid also lives, to sell her. But not to people of Kanesh and Assyrian traders, but to foreigners, men from Talhat, a town across the Euphrates in Northern Meso-potamia (see Veenhof 2008b, 18ff.).⁵ In this way she will not turn up again in Kanesh (*216:29) and her buyers must be instructed not to bring her back (*218:19).

⁴ See also Kt 86/k 155A/B = *210bis, a verdict of the colony that spells out what both parties have to swear, the second (presumably the plaintiff) only if the first party does not swear.

⁵ Here I quoted some phrases from these letters, but erroneously gave them numbers beginning with Kt 91/k instead of Kt 92/k.

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

We do not know who the maid was. Considering her role (see *217:13-15) and the fact that in *217:18 she is designated as awiltum, probably the Anatolian wife (for whom the designation amtum was used) of the writer, who is called “her lord/owner” (*216:15), a term that does not necessarily mean he owned her as a slave, because bēlum is also used for the husband who is his wife’s “lord”. Šu-lštar may have acquired her from her parents by paying an amount of silver (some marriage records - AKT 1, 77:18, TPAK 1, 161A:1, and Kt n/k 1414:6 - do mention the payment of a bride’s “price”, šīmū). While selling a slave-girl was her owner’s right, selling one’s Anatolian bride would have been unacceptable, unless the girl’s misbehavior might have been a sufficient reason for doing so. Marriage contracts mention such a “misdeed” (šillutum, Kt 91/k 132:13 and Kt d/k 29A:10, not necessarily restricted to sexual misbehavior) and the latter stipulates that in that case she is sent away with only a single toggle pin (ina ištēt tudittim, l. 11) to fasten her garment. The best parallel to the treatment of the maid in our text is provided by Kt 94/k 141, in which an Anatolian girl married as amtu-wife will be “stripped of her garment and cloak and sent away naked(?) if she is false or commits any act of impudence”.⁶ Because these contracts mention sending her away, but not the right to sell her into slavery, the relation between maid and “lord” may have been different in our contract and I also note that the sale to foreigners looks like a questionable deal (one might translate halliqāši also by “make her disappear”), which has to be carried out by cheating her.

Šu-lštar is probably identical to the man of that name who occurs in several lists of textiles, where also Ennam-Suen figures, and he could be the one who has a legal fight with Ennam-Suen in *224. Our three letters exhibit a few peculiarities, such as the plene writing of the pronominal suffix (*216:15.20.23; *217:12; *218:6), the use of TA for dá, and ahhū’a attunu written with crasis as a-hu-a-tū-nu (*216:11 and *218:1), while *216 and *217 spell qibima in the address with the sign bi₂, which is uncommon. These features may be due to Šu-lštar, if he himself wrote these letters that deal with a rather personal affair.

215. Kt 92/k 139 (1-101-92)

	a-na Ku-ku-a En-na-Sú-in	Say to Kukua, Ennam-Suen
	ù Ú-šú-<ur>-ša-A-šur	and Ušur-ša-Aššur,
	qí-bí-ma um-ma Šu-lštar-ma	thus Šu-lštar:
	a-ma-kam a-am-tám	“Keep the maid there
5	sà-ni-qá-ma i-na Ú-zi-/ni-im	under control and let her not
	e té-pu-uš-ma nu-a-am	operate in Uzinum and so
	e ta-al-pu-ut a-ni-ša-/am	affect the native Anatolian.
	ta-áš-pu-ra-am um-ma ší-it-/ma	She wrote me as follows:
	šu-up-ra-ma ší-me-a	‘Send (somebody) to collect
10	ma-ma-an li-il₅-qé	the price due to me’.
	a-hu-a-tū-nu a-ma-kam	May dear colleagues, keep the
l.e.	am-tám sà-ni-qá-ma	maid there under control
	ú sí-li-a-ší-ma	and cheat her
rev.	um-ma a-tū-nu-ma	by telling her:
15	a-na šé-er be-li-ki-i	‘One will conduct you

⁶ Lines 6-12, šumma / sarrat ul mimma / tašallal / šubassa u nahlaptaša ¹⁰ ihammassima / e-za-za-am-ri-ša / iṭarrassi (courtesy of C. Michel).

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

	i-ra-de₈-ú-ki	to your lord.
	lu sà-he-er-tí-ki lu KÙ.B.	Collect your small goods
	1 GÍN tí-šu-i pá-hi-ri-ma	and any silver you have
	KI a-li-ki-im pá-ni-ma	and then you will
20	a-na še-er be-li-ki-i	go to your lord with the
	ta-li-ki a-na-ma	first caravan!' And as soon as tù-pá-hu-ru-ni	she is gathering her belongings
	šú-ba-sà-a ù ša qá-qí-/dí-ša-a	deprive her of her garment
u.e.	eṭ-ra-ma a-na	and her head-dress and
25	Ta-al-ha-tí-i-im	sell her to somebody from Talhat.
le.e.	dí-na-ší a-na DUMU A-šùr	Do not sell her to an Assyrian
	ù DUMU Kà-né-eš lá ta-dá-/š	or a citizen of Kanesh.
	ha-li-qá-áš ù ma-at	Get rid of her and she shall never
	Kà-ne-eš lá i-na-mar	(again) be seen in the land of Kanesh!"

Notes

5-7. Epāšum probably means carrying out business activities (cf. the expression hubullam epāšum, used in *216:6-8). They would take place in Uzinum, presumably the name of a village, only attested here. What lapātum with personal acc. object means is not clear, perhaps rather "to deal with, to approach" than simply "to book, register".

9-10. The ambiguous šīmē'a laqā'um presumably means the price to be paid to her for what she had sold or produced. She asks for help to collect it.

23. Cf. the stipulation in Kt 94/k 141, quoted in the introduction. In stead of the descriptive ša qaqqidiša *217:6 writes "her šitrum", which may be essentially the same as nahlaptum, a cape or cloak covering the head.

28. Note the short suffix; ÁŠ, with three equal horizontals is much more likely than ŠU, which would mean a mistake in the gender.

216. Kt 92/k 181 (1-139-92)

	um-ma Šu-lštar-ma	Thus Šu-lštar,
	a-na En-na-Sú-in	say to
	qí-bí-ma	Ennam-Suen:
	mì-šu ša ta-áš-pu-ra-ma	"Why have you written
5	um-ma a-ta-ma	me as follows:
	½ ma-na KÙ.B.	'Your maid
	hu-bu-lá-am	has contracted
	a-ma-at-kà	a debt of
l.e.	té-pu-uš	½ mina of silver'.
10	a-še-er ra-ga-at-/ni	She is not only wicked,
	ù hu-bu-lá-am	but is also contracting
	a-na na-q/ki-ša-a	debts for her
	té-pá-áš 10 ma-na 10 GÍN	I have sent her consignments
	KÙ.B. šé-bu-lá-tim	of silver amounting to
15	uš-té-bi₄-lá-ší-im	10 minas and 10 shekels!
	a-ma-kam : a-ta	Over there, you are
	ù-la ta-na-ťá-al	not even looking!

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

	a'-ma i-a-tí-i	Do you really intend
u.e.	ta-[f]a-ba-am*	to move and come to me?
20	a-[a]m-tám ha-li-iq	Get rid of the maid,
le.e.	a-na Ta-al-ha-tím	sell her to a man from Talhat,
	dí-i-ší a-na	do not sell her
	DUMU A-šùr lá ta-dá-°ší₂	to an Assyrian!"

Notes

13-15. Šēbultum normally is the amount of silver a women receives for textiles she has produced and which are sold for her by a friend or relative (see AOATT 140-144). This statement means that Šu-līstar regularly sent her (the verb is a past tense of the Štn-stem) silver, so that there was no need to contract debts. The amount of silver is surprisingly high.

17. See for naṭālum, without object, "to look on", "(just) watch", without doing anything, my remarks in RA 70 (1976) 156 on ARM 1, 123:7.

18-19. ta-[f]a-ba-am is difficult. My derivatiom from tabā'um, "to get up", has to assume a con- traction (tatabbe'am > tatabbām), but ta-[š]a-ba-am makes no sense and making the slave-girl subject ("would she really get up and come to me?") is very unlikely.

217. Kt 92/k 120 (1-82-92)

A "second page" (or perhaps a draft?) of a letter, dealing with the same issue and probably addressed to the same persons as *215, as the comparison of the spelling a-hu-a-tù-nu in l. 11 there and l. 1 of this tablet suggests.

	a-hu-a-tù-nu	"Please, my brothers,
	ú-tù-tám	you must provide (her?)
	lu tù-pá-qí-dá nu-dí-ma	with barley,
	a-lá-nu-ma	but from there(?)
5	lá tù-pá-ra-dá-šu	you must not scare her ¹ .
	šú-ba-sà-a ù ší-it-/ar-ša-a	Deprive her of her garment
	eṭ-ra-šu	and her head-dress.
le.e.	a-na DUMU A-šùr	You must not sell her ¹
	ù a-na DUMU Kà-né-eš	to an Assyrian or to
10	lá ta-dá-na-šu	a citizen of Kanesh.
	a-na Ta-al-ha-/tim	Sell her ¹ to a man
	dí-na-šu	from Talhat
	ú a-ša-ar	and where
	ta-dá-na-ni	you sell (her)
15	um-ma a-tù-nu-ma	you must say:
u.e.	a-na ma-at	'Do not bring
	Kà-né-éš	the woman
le.e.	a-wi-il₅-tám	back to the land
	lá tù-ta-ra-nim	of Kanesh!" "

Notes

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

2-3. The translation is problematic, since it assumes that uṭṭutam stands for uṭṭatam, while the end of line 3 is unclear (a verbal form in the first person plural is impossible), but use of TA for dá is fairly consistent (also in lines 5, 10 and 14, but not in line 11).

4-5. Since the letter deals with Šu-lštar's maid, designated as awīltum in l. 18, I assume that the pronominal object suffix in l. 5, as is the case in lines 7, 8 and 10, refers to her and is a mistake for -ši (but the possessive suffix in l. 6 has the correct gender!). Allānum "from there", is difficult, because the addressees seem to live together with the maid in Kanesh; "over there" would be better, but for this the writer uses ammakam.

6. šit'arša a broken spelling for šitarša (not attested, from šitrum), the equivalent of ša qaqqidiša, "her head-dress" in *215:23. See for its meaning and its combination with various type of textiles and garments Michel – Veenhof 2010, 243 s.v.

Two letters mentioning Ennam-Suen (218-219)

218. Kt 92/k 101 (1-63-92)

A letter of Iddin-Suen, not addressed to Ennam-Suen, but to two men, among whom Abila (cf. *212:2), in which he asks them to take action so that Ennam-Suen acquires the copper he is entitled to.

	a-na Ás-°x(x) ù A₂-bi₄-lá	Say to As.....[and] Abila
	qí-bí-ma [um-ma]-dí-Sú-in-/ma	thus Iddin-Suen:
	i-na UR[UDU A₂-šur-i-dí	"Give from Aššur-idī's
	1 GÚ URUDU SIG₅ [a]-na	copper 1 talent of refined copper
5	En-na-Sú-in dí-°in₂	to Ennam-Suen.
	a-hu-a a-tù-nu	Please, my brothers,
	ih-da-ma URUDU A-šur-i-dí	take care to make Aššur-idī
	ša-áš-qí-lá : ù	pay the copper and
9	na-pá-al-tù-šu	write me also
l.e.	šu-up-ra-nim	his reaction.
rev.	ù 5 GÚ URUDU	He must also pay 5 talents
	ša Šu-lštar li-iš-qú-ul	of copper of Šu-lštar. He has
	ba-lu-um té-er-tí-a	made an agreement with the man
	KI a-wi-lim i-mì-gi₅-ir	without an instruction of mine.
15	i-ša-ha-at	Assist
	En-na-Sú-in	Ennam-Suen
	i-zi-za-ma a-na	and
	kà-ú-[i-šu] ù	to support him and
19	ša²-ku-°[li]²-šu	to provide him
u.e.	ma-h[a-x]	with food".

Notes

5. While there are two addressees (cf. the plural imperatives in lines 7-8 and 17), l. 5 clearly has the singular din.

18-20. Interpretation and reading of l. 19 are uncertain. If "him" in l. 18 refers to Ennam-Suen ka'ulum must be active and this would match šākulum. If it refers to Aššur-idī, it means that he must be "held", distrainted, until he pays, but then the reading of l. 19 is uncertain. In l. 20 one might expect a second imperative, but mah[aš] makes no sense here.

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

219. Kt 92/k 182 (1-142-92)

The letter deals with a lot of textiles, presumably of a joint caravan of Ennam-Aššur, Kaziya and Ennam-Suen. It tells Ennam-Aššur that the writer, one of a committee of five, had settled “your^{plur.} affair”, which could refer to Ennam-Aššur, son of Elamma and his brothers, who apparently had a disagreement (lines 17-18). This could be about the division of their inheritance, because there are more such cases in which a “committee of five” (hamištum) was asked or charged to solve such problems, cf. EL 244 and *175:13-14 (with the comment on this text and *220:22). The conflict concerned a lot of textiles, “placed before” the arbitrators and the solution was that Ennam-Aššur and his brothers had to discuss or negotiate (atwûm) about their share in the yield.

	um-ma A-šûr-i-mi-tí-ma	Thus Aššur-imittī,
	a-na En-nam-A-šûr	say to Ennam-Aššur:
	qí-bi₄-ma 5 né-nu	“The five of us
	a-wa-tí-ku-nu ni-ig-mu-ur-/ma	settled your ^{plur.} affair
5	24 TÚG.HI.A ma-ah-ri-ni	and 24 textiles were placed
	i-ší-ik-nu 6 TÚG.HI.A	before us. 6 textiles
	Kà-zi-a ta-al-qé	Kaziya took,
	18 TÚG.HI.A ší-tám	the remaining 18 textiles
	En-na-Su-in	Ennam-Suen has made
10	ú-ba-li-iṭ-ma	available as asset,
l.e.	lu ša li-tí-šu	so that you are satisfied
	lu ša ma-ku-ur	both with his
	ša-bu-a-tí-ni	and with what
	a-na ša-al-ša-tí-/ku-nu	About your one-third share
15	a-ta-wa a-ma-kam	you must negotiate. Over there
	ma-ma-an lá ú-ša-ha-az-/kà-ma	nobody must instigate
	iš-tí a-hi-kà	you to quarrel
	lá ta-ša-al	with your brother(s);
	iš-tí a-hi-kà	be on good terms
20	lu tá-ba-tí	with your brother(s)!”

Notes

10. See for balluṭum as used in connection with accounting and balancing payments in an administrative procedure, without paying cash, frequently with a dativus commodi, Veenhof 1987, 52-54.

11-12. Lit(t)um is difficult, see my remarks on *223:10; ša ma-KU-ur, clearly written, is mysterious.

14. šalšātum suggests that the text deals with textiles belonging to a joint caravan (ellutum), possibly one in which Ennam-Aššur, Kaziya and Ennam-Suen had participated.

B. A conflict between Ennam-Suen and Aššur-šamšī (220-224)

220. Kt 92/k 175 (1-134-92)

A letter by Aššur-imittī and Akūa to Ilī-bāni and Suen-ilšu about the whereabouts of a memorandum (tahsistum) that reported about the settlement they had worked out in a conflict between Ennam-Suen and Aššur-šamšī.

	um-ma A-šur-i-mi-tí ù	Thus Aššur-imittī and
	A-ku₅-a-ma a-na DINGIR-ba-ni	Akūa, say to Ilī-bāni
	ù Sú-in-DINGIR-šu qí-bi-ma	and Suen-ilšu:
	ta-ah-sí-is-tam ša	“Look for the document
5	a-wa-at En-na-Sú-in	(recording) that we settled
	ù A-šur-^dUTU^{si}	the affair of Ennam-Suen
	ni-ig-mu-ru a-ma-kam	and Aššur-šamšī,
	lu i-na qá-tí a-wil-il₅-/tim	either among what the lady has
	lu i-na ṭup-pé-e^l(IM) ša	with her or among the tablets ^l
10	ku-nu-ki-ni am-ra-ma	under our seals. Give him the
	ma-la a-wa-tù-šu	record declaring that his whole
l.e.	ga-am-ra-ni dí-na-šu-ma	affair has been settled, so that li-il₅-ma-sí	he can take cognizance of it..
rev.	lá-šu-a-at a-wa-tí-šu	If it is not there, we
15	né-nu : nu-kà-a-al	remember his words
	ù a-tù-nu a-ma-kam	and you there must write down
	ma-lá tù-kà-lá-ni	everything you remember,
	lá-pì-ta-ni-ma a-wa-at-/ni	so that our statement becomes
	a-na iš-té-et (eras.)	one and the same and
20	li-tur₄-ma a-na-kam	we can tell him here
	a-wa-sú lu ni-iq-bi₄-šum	(the outcome of) his affair.
	A-na-ah-ì-lí ha-mu-uš-ni	Ānah-ilī was our fifth man.”
	a-na DINGIR-ba-ni qí-bi₄-ma	Say to Ilī-bāni:
	ša 3 ma-na KÙ.B. ú-mu-kà	“Your term for the 3 minas of
25	e-ta-at-qú-ú ù KÙ.B.	silver has passed and the silver
u.e	*x-na-x a^l : im-tí-ší-lx²
	ma-lá K[Ù.B. qā]-at-kà	Give all the silver
	i-kà-[šu-d]u	you manage to acquire
le.e.	a-na En-na-Sú-in dí-in-ma	to Ennam-Suen to bring it here.
	lu-ub-lam ki-a-a-ma : wa-áš-ba-/ku	It is for that reason that I am staying!
30	5 GÍN KÙ ig-ri-šu / dí-in	Give him 5 shekels of silver as wages.

Notes

2. See for Akūa the note on the seal impressed on *168.

4. The tahsistum here is not a memo, but a valid record, presumably a witnessed record of the solution reached by mediators or judges.

9. Plural required; the scribe used a ‘hypercorrect spelling’ with final -m, see Grammar § 3.36.

14. Laššuat (subject tahsistum) must introduce a conditional sentence without conjunction.

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

19-20. This reflects the practice that a number of witnesses (from two to five) would deliver one single deposition as testimony, they had to act as šībū ētamdūtum, “witnesses in agreement”, which required coordinating what they remembered, see my observations in Veenhof 2003a, 95 with note 39.

22. If a deposition of a testimony had to be drawn up some time after the event witnessed, when legal action asked for it, and not all witnesses were then available, the record at the end would nevertheless record the name of the absent “fellow (witness/mediator)” (tappā’um). In doing so one finds occasionally ordinals, such as šališni, “the third of us” (ICK 1, 185 rev.:7, PN šališni mēt), rarely rabūni, “the fourth of us” (*225:25), and in our text hamušni, “the fifth of us” (see now also OALP 157 with note 576). “The fifth of us” reflects that in a number of cases a committee of five men, called hamištum (see for it OALP 52 note 243, and 277) was designated to handle a case (called 5 šābum in CCT 4, 14a:17, and 5, 3a:30, and hamištum in EL 244:5, KTK 110 rev.:4’. Note in *219:3-4, “The five of us settled you affair” (5 nēnu awātikunu nigmur).

26. Not understood, the first sign could be a damaged ZU or ŠÍ. The final verb is unclear and the third sign, a clear ZI, excludes reading im-tí-id, “has become much”. Reading the last sign as IR would yield imtiZir, but maZārum is excluded, because this is not an i-class verb.

221. Kt 92/k 176 (1-135-92)

A tablet recording a dialogue between Ennam-Suen and Aššur-šamšī, which took place in Aššur-šamšī’s house, as reported by the anonymous witnesses who figure in l. 3 as “we”, but are not mentioned by name at the end of the record. The text also does not mention that they testified at the instigation of a colony as court-of-law, which means that our text is either a draft or a duplicate of a deposition.

	a-na še-er A-šūr-UTU^š	We entered with Aššur-šamšī
	i-na ba-[áb] ha-ra-ni-šu	when he was about to go on a journey
	né-ru-u^ob-ma u₂m-ma En-na-Sú-^oin]	and Ennam-Suen said
	a-na A-šūr-UTU^š-[ma]	to Aššur-šamšī:
5	a-pu-na lá-ma kà-sà-am	“Please, before we drink
	ni-iš-tí-ú : a-wa-tí-im	from the cup I want to declare
	lá-ta-wu-kum li-ba-tim	something to you, do not get
	lá ta-ma-lá : i-nu-mi i-n[a]	angry! When they detained
	Wa-áš-ha-ni-a ú-kà-i-lu-ni-n[i]	me in Wašhaniya did
10	2 ma-na KÙ.B. a-ha-ti	my sister sent you to me with 2
	tù-še-bi-lá-kà um-ma A-šūr-[UTU]^š	minas of silver?” Aššur-šamšī answered:
	ke-na tù-še-bi-lá-ni-/ma	“Sure, she sent me, but ú-lá a-dí-na-kum um-ma	I did not give it to you.”
l.e.	En-na-Sú-[n]-ma u₄-ma-am	Ennam-Suen said: “Today
15	a-ha-tí ta-tù-ra-am	my sister has come back here
rev.	um-ma ší-it-ma ta-al-tám-/nam	and she said: ‘You have done me wrong!
	KÙ.B. ù ší-ba-tí-šu	Produce the silver and its interest
	ša iš-tù 8 ša-na-/tim	due since eight years
	še-ší-ma dí-nam um-ma	and give it to me!’ ” Aššur-šamšī
20	A-šūr-UTU^š-ma e-ni-ma-ma	answered: “Just now

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

- a-na šé-ep A-šur-i-mi-ti* I have humbly begged Aššur-imittī, am-qú-ut : a-hu-ú-a : a-tù-nu saying: 'Please, my brothers,
a-ma GUŠKIN 15 GÍN ù 1 ma-na here are gold, 15 shekels, and 1 mina
- sà-am-tum ma-lá ta-le-/a-ni* of carnelian, please the palace 25 É.GAL-lam tá-i-ba[Ø] as well as you can".
um-ma A-šur-UTU^š-ma a-n[a] Aššur-šamšī also said to En-na-Sú-in-ma šu-ma Ennam-Suen: "If the KÙ.B. a-na m°a-dí-im i-tù-ar silver (due) has increased much u.e. al-kam-ma ší-b[ē]-kà then come here, let me seize your witnesses
- 30 la-aš-ba-a[ti]-ma ma-lá [Sú-in-ma and do with me what you think best!"
 le.e. e-pá-ší-im ep-ša-ni um-ma En-na-↑ Ennam-Suen answered
a-na A-šur-UTU^š-ma É.GAL-lúm KÙ.B. Aššur-šamšī
 as follows: "The palace
ma-dam i-šé-ri-a <i-šu > <has> a substantial silver claim on me"

Notes

5-6. The departure of a friend or relative apparently was an occasion for drinking together, as a farewell and also to confirm a relation. The writer of our letter is ready to do so, but only after he has confronted his friend with a few less pleasant facts.

10. Interpretation as a question suggested by Kouwenberg.

16. Lammunum can be used with a personal accusative object in the meaning "to treat badly" (Kt 91/k 132:9, ulammanši, a husband his wife) and with a personal dative suffix, meaning "to become angry at", "to blame somebody", well attested with libbum (libbī ilamminakkum, cf. CAD L, 117, b) or a person as subject (danniš ahatka talminakkum, Kt n/k 1538:10).

19. I take the verbal form as imperative of the Š-stem of wašā'um, rather than as one of šasā'um, "to call, settle accounts" (as abbreviation of nikkassī šasā'um).

20. The adverb e-ni-ma-ma also occurs (see Grammar § 15.11 with note 699) in AKT 6-a, 257:3, e-ni-ma-ma našpertam ukallimka, where Larsen translates: "now here". In our text a temporal meaning "just now", "quite recently", or the like would make sense.

21-25. Aššur-imittī apparently was the boss, perhaps the head of the firm or a main investor (in *219 he warns Ennam-Aššur not to quarrel with his brothers). Aššur-šamšī is in a difficult position, because the local Anatolian palace (in Wašhaniya, l. 9) is angry with him (lines 23-25), which presumably means that he has an unfulfilled obligation. He asks Ennam-Suen for clemency, i.e. not to press his financial claim, inspired by the latter's sister, and tells him that he has also begged Aššur-imittī for help. To express this he uses the idiom ana šēp PN maqātum, not yet recorded for OA in CAD, but now several times attested, see my note on Prag I 467¹:23 in JAOS 122 [2002] 799. He asks him to make precious gifts to appease (ta"ubum, or perhaps to satisfy) the palace, but Ennam-Suen is unable to do much, because (lines 32-33) he also has a substantial debt to the palace.

27-31. The meaning of these lines is not very clear to me. "Seizing witnesses" usually means making them testify to confirm or deny a claim. It seems that Aššur-šamšī wants to hear from Ennam-Suen's witnesses whether his claim, or rather the one submitted by the latter's sister – interest for eight years, l. 17-19, which would mean more than doubling the original debt! – is true. And, if indeed so (as we must supply before l. 31), he can do with him what he wants.

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

222. Kt 92/k 166 (1-126-92)

This unopened envelope must contain a witnessed record of what was said during a confrontation between two persons, whose names are not mentioned on the envelope, in the presence of three men, who later had to testify before the colony on what they had witnessed. The name of one of them, not present then, was registered as “our companion” (l. 5). The affair must be the one recorded in *223, where the same three men, including “our companion”, are mentioned in lines 20-23 as witnesses and their mention is followed by what are lines 9-11 on the envelope. Our unopened envelope therefore must contain a tablet similar or identical to *223 and the latter’s presence in the archive explains why a second copy was preserved unopened in its envelope.

	seal A
	KIŠIB Zu-ba DUMU En-na-nim	Seal of Zuba, son of Ennānum,
	KIŠIB Puzur ₄ - ^d IŠKUR	Seal of Puzur-Adad,
	DUMU I-dí-lštar	son of Iddin-lštar;
	A-lá-bu-um DUMU Zi-a	Ali-abum, son of Ziya,
	seal A
5	tap-pá-i-ni	was our companion.
l.e.	seal B
rev.	seal B
	a-na a-wa-tim	For these words
	a-ni-a-tim kà-ru-um	the Kaneš colony
	Kà-né-eš i-dí-ni-a-tí-ma	made us available and
	ṭup-pá-am IGI <<IGI>> GÍR	this tablet we gave
	seal B
10	ša A-šūr ší-bu-tí-ni	we gave as our testimony
u.e.	seal A
	ni-dí-in	rendered before Aššur’s dagger.
le.e	seal B
ri.e.	seal B

Seals

seal A = CS 1240 = *227 seal A, inscription: [KIŠIB] Zu-ba / DUMU En-na-ni[m]

Seal B = CS 1236 = *233 seal A, inscription: KIŠIB *Puzur*₄-^dIŠKUR / [D]UMU I-dí-lštar

223. Kt 92/k 95 (1-57-92)

Deposition by witnesses or mediators of what was said during confrontation between Ennam-Suen and Aššur-šamšī, presented to the Kanesh colony when it had summoned them to testify, presumably similar or identical to the tablet contained in the unopened envelope *222.

A-šūr-UTU^{šī} ù

Aššur-šamšī and

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

	En-na-Sú-in	Ennam-Suen
	iš-bu-tù-ni-a-tí-ma	seized us and
	um-ma En-na-Sú-in-/ma	Ennam-Suen said
5	a-na A-šùr-UTU^š-ma	to Aššur-šamšī:
	KÙ.B. ki-iš-da-tí-/a	"Give me the silver
	dí-nam	that accrues to me".
	um-ma A-šùr-UTU^š-ma	Aššur-šamšī answered:
	KÙ.B. ú-lá a-da-na-kum	"I will/can not give you
l.e.	a-na li-ta-tim (over erasure)	the silver, for I have 11	ak-ru-ub-kà	you for "
	um-ma En-na-Sú-in-<ma>	Ennam-Suen said:
rev.	mi-šu-um a-ta	"Why is it
	i-a-tí	me that you
15	ta-kà-ra-ba-ni	?
	me-er-i-kà ku-ru-ub	 your sons!"
	um-ma A-šùr-UTU^š-ma	Aššur-šamšī answered:
	a-na ga-am-ri-kà	"I will personally take
	a-na-ku a-za-za-kum	your expenses for my account".
20	IGI Zu-ba	In the presence of Zuba (and)
	IGI Puzur₄-^dIŠKUR	of Puzur-Adad;
	A-lá-bu-um DUMU Zi-a	Ali-abum, son of Zia
	tap-pá-i-ni a-na	was our colleague. For
	a-wa-tim a-ni-a-tim	these words
u.e.	kà-rum Kà-ni-eš	the Kanesh colony
26	i-dí-ni-a-tí-ma	made us available and
	ṭup-pá-am	this tablet (with) our
l.e.e.	IGI GÍR ša A-šùr	testimony we presented
	ší-bu-tí-ni ni-dí-in	before Aššur's dagger.

Notes

5, 8, 17. The scribe writes the name Aššur-šamšī always without the divine determinative before UTU; his god Aššur was "his sun", but was not equated with the sungod.

10. The purpose of the action designated as karābum (see the note one l. 11) is indicated as ana li-ta-tim, which is difficult. There is a noun litum (lit(t)um or lītum) in OA, four occurrences of which CAD L 151 registers under lē/ītu, "cheek, side", assuming (under 2,c, on the basis of occurrences in OB letters of the qualification ša litika) a meaning "persons and assets for which one is responsible / under one's authority", stating for OA: "with the connotation of assets". Registering our word under lētum must have been suggested by the (unique) plene-writing in TC 2, 53:7', "We paid 13½ shekels (of silver?) ana le-e-tí-im", in a series of small payments for various expenses, some related to transport. But in most OA occurrences of litum, where small amounts of silver or copper are given to a person "at the time of" (inūmi or ina) his litum», and "when he made his litum" (Kt. 86/k 201:1-3, 10-12, 25-27), a meaning "assets" makes no sense. Dercksen 2011:63-65 opts for some kind of ritual, which involved a meal. He bases his interpretation on texts like Kt c/k 1147 and Kt 91/k 201. In lines 1-11 and 22-27 of the latter small amounts of silver (between 1 and 2 shekels) are given to various men, when they "went up" (elā'um) to a temple (twice that of lšhara) or “when he made his litum” (inūmi litišu ēpušu), mentioned alongside such a payment for a trip to the City (of Assur). Other texts mention the occasion as ina litišu (5 times i-li-tí-šu). But what kind of ritual or ceremonial act litum was remains unclear. And since the phrase li-tí-šu ēpuš could very well contain a plural litū (also in i-li-tí-šu), the connection with li-ta-tim in our text is also ambiguous. The meaning of the action thus remains unclear, see also Veenhof Lex., s.v.

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

11-16. The meaning of ana litātim akrubka is not clear. The action apparently cost silver, since it deprived Ennam-Suen of what would accrue to him. To make up for it(?) his opponent promises to guarantee him his expenses, perhaps those due for the act of karābum. This verb is well attested in OA with a personal dative, “to pray, invoke a blessing for somebody”, usually “before” (mahar) a deity, cf. CAD K 196, 3, a. There are also a few examples of a meaning “to vow / offer” something to a deity, an “offering” (ikribum), or a precious object (RIMA 1, 43, no. 2:8; POAT 10:23). The writer of Kt 91/k 156 mentions that three times he offered / vowed small amounts (once 90 shekels of copper and twice 1 shekel of silver, probably its equivalent) for a named man (ana PN akrub). And the one of Kt 91/k 201 did the same (amounts of 1½ shekel of silver and 1 mina of copper) on three occasions, twice for a man “when he went (up) to the City” (13-18, 31-33).⁷ Dercksen 2011, 64, who quotes these texts, renders the verb as “to give for a sacrifice”, but since the verb in our texts is not used with a personal dative, but with a personal accusative object (lines 11-16) this interpretation is impossible here.

224. Kt 92/k 187 (1-147-92)

A letter by Āl-ṭāb to Aššur-šamšī and Ennam-Suen - both together are addressed as “my brothers” in l. 13, the former as “my father» in l. 21, - not related to the previous records, but inserted here because it also documents how the two cooperated.

	a-na A-šur-^dUTU^ši	Say to Aššur-šamšī
	ù En-na-Sú-in qí-bi₄-ma	and Ennam-Suen,
	um-ma A-al-DÙG-ma	thus Āl-ṭāb. Say in
	a-na A-šur-^dUTU^ši qí-bi₄-ma	particular to Aššur-šamšī:
5	mì-šu ša ta-áš-pu-ra-ni-ni	“Why are you ^{plur.} writing
	um-ma a-tù-nu-ma al-/kam	me as follows: ‘Come here,
	ší-tám ni-ša-kà-an	we must settle expenditures’?”
	tám-kà-ru-um i-na re-ší-/a	The creditor keeps a check on me
	i-za-az KÙ.B. 1 ma-na	(because) I have to pay
10	a-ša-qá-al : ke-e	1 mina of silver! How could
	lá-li-kà-am ú-lá 10 GÍN	I come while I do not even
	KÙ.B. i-na qá-tí-a	have 10 shekels of silver
	i-ba-ší a-hu-a	available? Please, my
l.e.	a-tù-nu a-dí ITU.1.KAM	brothers, wait one month
15	qá-i-a-ni	more for me.
rev.	šu-ma e-mu-qá-tám	If he treats you in a
	e-pá-áš-ku-nu-ma	violent way, yea even

⁷ Kt 91/k 201:13-18, “1 ½ GÍN KÙ.B. [inūmi] / ana ālim^{ki} i-[i-ū] (15) ana Abu-šalim DUMU E-ṇ[a-x x] / inūmi ana ālim il[īu] / ana Aššur-mūtappil / DUMU I-da-ZU ak-ru-ub; 30-33, [x x x] KÙ.B. inūmi / [x x x] ša É? Itūr-ilī / ana ālim^{ki} illikuni / akrubšum. Cf. Kt 94/k 1071:1-5, 4 GÍN KÙ.B. / inūmi K. / ana ālim / illiku / akrubšum.

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

	ma a-kà-ri-im i-lá-/ak-ma	turns to the colony and
	kà-ru-um i-da-ku-nu	the colony makes you appear in court,
20	ù a-na-ku qá-dí-ku-nu-/ma	then I am with you in it!
	a-bi₄ a-ta šé-tù-ta-kà	My dear father, could I
	a-na-ku a-lá-qé a-lá-nu-kà-a	hold you in contempt?
	a-ba-am ša-ni-am	Do we have any father but you?
	ni-šu a-na Tù-ùh-pi-a	I will travel on to Tuhpiya
25	e-tí-iq-ma KÙ.B. 10 GÍN	and try to get some silver,
	ù 1/3 ma-na ma-lá	10 or 20 shekels, as much
	ga-am-ri-a : a-lá-qé-a-ma	as I need for my expenses,
	ù a-ta-bi₄-a-ma	then I will get moving
29	a-ta-lá-kam a-bi₄ a-ta	and depart for you. You, my father,
u.e.	DÍ-RI-ú*	!

Notes

7. ZI-tám šakānum could have zittum, “share”, or šītum, “expenditures”, as object. I prefer the latter, which may imply that claims were “submitted” (šakānum; see for this verb as an abbreviation of ana nikkassī šakānum, AOATT 434ff.) and accounts settled, which must have required the presence of the writer. If the object is zittam we have to think of establishing the shares in an inheritance, an issue that could create problems.

8. The expression ina rēš PN izizzum usually means “to support, to attend to” somebody, but here the meaning is different: the creditor keeps a close watch on, puts pressure on his debtor to prevent him from leaving before he has paid. A comparable meaning is found in CCT 4, 11a:23, ina rēš nishatim iziz, “attend to the levying of the tax”, i.e. make sure that it is correctly done, and in Kt n/k 1538:14f., ina rēš šazzuztika lū taziz qāssunu lū taṭṭul, “she must keep a check on your representatives and watch what they do!”

16-19. I assume a conditional protasis, with a nominal sentence (l. 19) with predicative -ma as apodosis. Qadum expresses the solidarity of the writer with his addressees if there is trouble. “Going to the colony” refers to an appeal to the authorities for assistance in dealing with his opponents and the result could be that the colony “gives you, hands you over” (tadānum with personal accusative object). This expression, called the “testimonia formula” in OALP, is normally written at the end of depositions by witnesses obliged by the colony to appear and render testimony, which explains my translation.

20-24. Rhetorical questions, confirmed by the long ā of the possessive suffix -ka.

30. I do not understand this line, which is complete, without continuation on the left edge.

Comment

Why this letter, meant primarily for Aššur-šamšī, was also addressed to Ennam-Suen is not clear. While many sentences of the letter are understandable, I do not understand what really was at stake, because the identity of the man who is posing a threat to the addressees (lines 16ff.) is unknown. His actions suggests that he had a serious, probably financial or legal claim and this might be connected with the wish of the addressees to settle accounts about ex-penditures (or, perhaps, the shares in a inheritance). The exact relationship between the writer and the main addressee, Aššur-šamšī, whom he calls his father and holds in high esteem, is also unknown. The addressees of the letter may have lived in Kanesh, where it was found, but from where it was written is unknown.

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

C. Legal documents (225-234)

Ennam-Suen as guarantor

225. Kt 92/k 96 (1-58-92)

Deposition made by witnesses or mediators, summoned by the Tawiniya colony, about what was said in a confrontation between Ennam-Suen and Šu-lštar.

	Šu-lštar ù En-na-Sú-in iṣ-bu-tù-ni-a-tí-ma um-ma En-na-Sú-in-ma KÙ ša qá-ta-at	Šu-lštar and Ennam-Suen seized us and Ennam-Suen said: “The silver for which we had our- selves registered as guarantors of Al-ṭāb concerning the Kilirians, pay that silver”. Šu-lštar answered: “Within 6 months, in accordance with the ruling of my city, I will come and render account to you”.
5	A-al-DÙG a-šu-mi Ki-li-ri-e ni-il ₅ -tap-/tù KÙ šu-qú-ul um-ma Šu-lštar-ma a-na 6 ITI.KAM	Ennam-Suen said: “If you do not come to Tawiniya within 6 months and do not render account to me, will you then not give me the silver and its interest without resorting to legal action or oath?” Šu-lštar answered: “I will give it you”.
l.e.	ki-ma a-wa-at	For these words the Tawiniya colony made us appear in court and before Aššur’s dagger we gave this tablet. Witnessed by lštar-bāni, by Šimatānum, by Zuniya;
rev.	a-li-a : a-lá-kam-ma
11	a-wa-tám a-dá-na-/kum um-ma En-na-Sú-in ₂ -ma šu-ma a-na 6 ITI.KAM a-na Ta-wi-ni-a lá [ta]-lá-kam-/ma
15	a-wa-tám lá ta-dí-nam ba-lum dí-nim ba-lúm ma-mi-tim KÙ ú ṣi-ba-tí-šu lá ta-dá/nam um-ma Šu-lštar-ma lá-dí-na-kum a-na a-wa-tim a-ni-a-tim
20	kà-ru-um Ta-wi-ni-a i-dí-ni-a-/tí-ma
u.e.	IGI GÍR ša A-šur ṭup-pá-am a-ni-am ni-dí-/in/ IGI lštar-ba-ni
le.e.	IGI Ší-ma-ta-nim IGI Zu-ni-a Ma-num-ba-lúm-A-šur DUMU Du-ni-a	Mannum-balum-Aššur, son of Dunniya,
25	ra-bu-ni	was our fourth man.

Notes

6. Kiliri’ē must be men from Kilir and I assume that this nisbe is a phonetic variant of Kilari’um, attested in ICK 1, 174:4 (where a man from Kilar delivered straw to an Assyrian), but the town Kila/ir is otherwise unknown.

9f. The possessive suffix added to “the city” makes me doubt whether the city of Assur is meant; probably another town, in which case one should understand it as “the kārum of my town”. The ruling, an existing regulation or an ad hoc decision, was one which granted a debtor extension of payment while fixing a (new) due date, called ūmē šakānum.

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

16f. The promise to pay balum dīnim balum mamītīm (also balum šaltīm, “without legal fight”, e.g. TC 3, 263:24f.) secures prompt payment on the due date. It does not occur in normal debt-notes, but when there are problems, e.g. when, as in our text, a disputed claim had to be confirmed or upon default a new payment promise was made. See now also OALP 263-7.

22. The sing IN was added later, written between the lines

24-25. See for «the fourth of us», rab'uni, the note on *220:22. The ordiale rab'um (ra-áb-ú-um in RA 81 [1987] 68 no. 102:5'), is not yet recorded in either GKT or CAD R s.v. rebû.

226. Kt 92/k 171A/B (1-131-92)

A well-preserved tablet with ca. half of its case, stating that a debt, owed by Ennam-Suen to Kurub-Suen, in eponymy year REL 82 ws padi by Ennam-Suen, as his brother's guarantor, to Kurub-Suen's representative(?). The latter is obliged to clear the debtor if the creditor claims the money.

A. Envelope

	KIŠIB A-dé-lá-at KIŠ[IB Ir-am]- ^d A-šūr	Seal of Adad-ellat, seal of Ir'am-Aššur,
	DUMU I-dí-ba-ni	son of Idi-bāni,
	seal A
	KIŠIB Pí-lá-ah-lštar DUMU I-bi-sú-a	seal of Pílah-lštar, son of Ibisua,
	ša 12 GÍN KÙ.B. A-a-DÙG	to the effect that Āl-ṭāb owes
5	a-na Kur-ub-Sú-in ha-bu-lu-ma	12 shekels of silver to Kurub-Suen
	En-na-Sú-in qá-ta-tù-n[ī]	and Ennam-Suen is guarantor
	seal B
l.e.	°12 ₂ GÍN KÙ.B. ki-ma	The 12 shekels of silver instead of
rev.	missing
u.e.	missing
le.e	seal C

Seals

seal A = CS 1148 = *207B = *233C, see the comment on *207 seal B; seal used by Ir'am-Aššur.

seal B = CS 1247, inscription: Pí-la-ah-lš[ar] / DUMU I-bi-sú-[a]

seal C = CS 367 = Kt n/k 1722A, seal of Adad-ellat (or Adellat), son of Adad-bāni

B. tablet

	12 GÍN KÙ.B.	12 shekels of silver,
	ša A-a-DÙG a-na	which Āl-ṭāb owes to
	Kur-ub-Sú-in ha-bu-lu-ma	Kurub-Suen and (for which)
	En-na-Sú-in qá-ta-tù-ni	Ennam-Suen was guarantor,
5	KÙ.B. ki-ma Kur-ub-Sú-in	Pílah-lštar collected that silver
	Pílah-lštar il₅-qé	in the name of Kurub-Suen,
	En-na-Sú-in ki-ma	Ennam-Suen paid it to him
	A-a-DÙG	to him in the name of l.e	KÙ.B. iš-qú-ul-šum	Āl-ṭāb.
10	šu-ma Kur-ub-Sú-in	If Kurub-Suen raises a claim

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

rev.	a-na A-al-DÙG i-tù-wa-ar Pi-lá-ah-lštar ú-ba-áb-šu KÙ.B. i-na li-mi-im	(for it) for against Āl-ṭāb, Pilah-lštar will clear him. He collected the silver
15	Šu-da-a (eras) ITI.KAM Ku-zal-li il₅-qé IGI ^d IŠKUR-ELLAT	during the eponymy of Šudaya, in month XI. Witnessed by Adad-ellat,
l.e.	IGI Ir-am-A-šūr DUMU l-dí-ba-ni	by Ir'am- Aššur, son of ldi-bāni.

Notes

A: 2, B:19. The name of Ir'am-Aššur's father is spelled both l-dí-ba-ni and NI-dí-ba-ni.

A:3. The same man occurs in *232:1, as sealer and witness to a contract recording a debt of the brothers Ennam-Suen and Āl-ṭāb, dated to year REL 81, but his seal, CS 1247, is not on the envelope!

Comment

The situation is complicated, because somebody else than the debtor paid to somebody else than the creditor and there is no mention of a quittance. Therefore the person collecting the debt instead of the creditor is obliged to clear the debtor from future claims by the creditor. Such a claim would be possible if the recipient of the payment had not passed it on to the creditor or had not informed him about it. The relation between Pilah-lštar (attested in ICK 2,132:41; TC 2, 56:3'; TC 3, 251A:2; Kt 87, 384:24; and *232:1, where he is witness to a debt owed by Ennam-Suen and Āl-ṭāb) and the creditor is unknown. Pilah-lštar could be his representative or associate, or Kurub-lštar could have ceded the debt-note to him, perhaps even in order to meet a claim. Note the absence of the clause that, if the debt-note turns up it is invalid, usually inserted in quittances if the debt-note could not be immediately returned to the debtor. That this contract was still in its envelope indicates that it had not been necessary to (open and) use it, because no problems had arisen.

227. Kt 92/k 173A/B (1-132-92)

Undated contract in an unopened envelope, whereby Aššur-šamšī and Ennam-Suen are registered as guarantors for Āl-ṭāb and stipulate that the latter's house in Assur serves as their security if they are forced to pay for him. I assume that the involvement of Ennam-Suen is responsible for the fact that this contract was found in the house.

A. envelope

	KIŠIB Zu-ba DUMU En-na-nim seal A (upside down)	Seal of Zuba, son of Ennānum,
	KIŠIB Puzur₄-A-na DUMU A-šur-dan KIŠIB Na-áb-Sú-in DUMU Puzur₄-We-er	seal of Puzur-Anna, son of Aššur-dān, seal of Nabi-Suen, son of Puzur-Wêr,
5	KIŠIB A-al-DÙG	seal of Āl-ṭāb,
l.e.	seal B	to the effect that for
rev.	ša 11 ma-na KÙ.B. qá-ta-at A-al-DÙG	11 minas of silver Aššur-šamšī and Ennam-Suen had themselves

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

	A-šur^dUTU ú En-na-Sú-in	registered as guarantors of
	il₅-ta-ap-tù-ni šu-ma	Āl-ṭāb. If the silver is
10	KÙ i-na še-er A-šur^dUTU	collected at the expense of
	ú En-na-Sú-in i-ta-al-qé	Aššur-šamšī and Ennam-Suen
	É^{bé-tum} ša a-lim^{ki}	Āl-ṭāb's house in the City
	ša A-al-DÙG e-ru-ba-at / KÙ	serves a security for the silver.
	seal B (upside down)
u.e.	seal C
le.e.	seal C
ri.e.	seal D

Seals

seal A = CS 1240 = *220A, inscription: [KİŠIB] Zu-ba / [DU]MU En-na-n[m];

seal B = CS 1251 must, by elimination, be the seal of Āl-ṭāb.

seal C = CS 1252 = CS 591 = Kt n/k 1831B, the seal of Nabi-Suen, son of Puzur-Wēr, who has sealed this contract, dated to eponymy year REL 87, as witness.

seal D = CS 639 = Kt n/k 1850B = VS 26 seal 9 (first seal on VS 26, 91 = EL 63) and ICK 1, 20, seal G, cf. Teissier nos. 269 and 134b. Most probably the seal of Puzur-Anna, son of Aššur-dān. The three records known (Kt n/k 1850 is unpublished) have no common sealer, but it is extremely likely that the seal was used on ICK 1, 20A by Aššur-dān, son of Puzur-Anna, the father or the son of the second witness in our contract. If so, Iddin-

Abum, son of Aššur-dān, who sealed VS 26, 91, must have been a brother of our witness. Since only VS 26, 91 is dated, to eponymy year REL 85, it is difficult to make out what is the correct solution. It seems likely that the two brothers used the same seal, inherited from their father, but it is not clear whether they really shared it or whether one brother had inherited it from the other.

B. tablet

	11 ma-na KÙ.B.	As for the 11 minas of silver
	ša qá-ta-at	for which Aššur-šamšī and
	A-al-DÙG A-šur^dUTU	Ennam-Suen had themselves
	ú En-na-Su-en	registered as guarantors
5	il₅-ta-áp-tù	of Āl-ṭāb,
	šu-ma KÙ.B. i-na	should the silver
l.e.	še-er A-šur^dUTU	be collected at the
	ú En-na-Sú-in	expense of Aššur-šamšī,
rev.	i-ta-al-qé	and Ennam-Suen,
10	É^{bi-tám}	then Āl-ṭāb's house
	ša a-lim^{ki} ša A-al-DÙG	in the City is a
	e-ru-ba-at KÙ.B.	pledge for the silver.
	IGI Zu-ba IGI Puzur₄-/A-na	In the presence of Zuba, of Puzur-Anna,
	IGI Na-áb-Sú-in	of Nabi-Suen.

Notes

A:1-3; B 14-15. The first witness also sealed *222:1. Nabi-Suen, son of Puzur-Wēr, sealed Kt n/k 1831 as witness, during the year REL 87; Puzur-Anna, son of Aššur-dān, occurs also in VS 26, 104:8-9 and in Kt 93/k 164:4-5 (Appendix text 11) as transporter of silver of Elamma.

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

A:8.10; B:3.7. The scribe writes the second part of Aššur-šamšī's name with the divine deter-minative, but without the phonetic complement –ši.

A:10.13. Note KÙ with omission of BABBAR.

Comment

As we learn from *232:7-8 (dated to the year REL 81), Āl-ṭāb probably was a brother of Ennam-Suen, both sons of Amur-Šamaš, which explains why he (together with Aššur-šamšī) took the risk of acting as guarantor for him. According to *226:8 (from the year REL 82) Ennam-Suen had also guaranteed and paid for him 12 shekels of silver, and *225 records how, together with Šu-lštar, he had guaranteed for Āl-ṭāb in a transaction concerning men from Kilir. He may also have been the man who according to *326 had paid 43 shekels of silver on behalf of Āl-ṭāb. That a guarantor tried to protect himself against the risk of subsidiary liability, which could force him to pay for the debtor, is known from several texts (see Veenhof 2001:122), but establishing a hypothecary security on property of the debtor is rather unique. The high value of a house in Assur made it an attractive security for a substantial silver debt.

Ennam-Suen as creditor

228. Kt 91/k 493 (1-346-91)

A debt-note from the year REL 99, recording a silver debt of Šalim-ahum and Šu-Suen, payable within one month.

	2$\frac{2}{3}$ ma-na 4 GÍN	A debt of 2 minas 44 shekels
	KÙ.B. ṣa-ru-pá-am i-ṣé-er	of refined silver Šalim-ahum
	Ša-lim-A-hi-im ù Šu-Sú-in	and Šu-Suen owe to
	En-na Sú-in i-šu	Ennam-Suen.
5	iš-tù SAG ITU.KAM	From the beginning of month III,
	ša ki-na-tim li-mu-/um	eponymy of the successor of
	ša qá-té lī-dan	of Ilī-dān, they will
	a-na ITU.KAM i-ša-qú-lu	pay in one month.
l.e.	Šu-ma lá iš-qú-lu	If they fail to pay
10	1$\frac{1}{2}$ GÍN.TA : a-na	they will add 1 $\frac{1}{2}$
	1 ma-na-im i-na	shekel per mina
	ITIUKAM ṣí-ib-tám	per month
	ú-ṣú-bu	as interest. In the presence of
	IGI Ištar-DINGIR-šu DUMU A-šur-/ba-ni	Ištar-ilšu, son of Aššur-bāni,
15	IGI A-da DUMU E-na-A-šur	of Ada, son of Ennam-Aššur.

Notes

5. See for occurrences in debt-notes of "the beginning of the month", Veenhof, JEOL 34 (1995/6) 15f. Several feature when, as in our debt-note, the payment term is rather short, one to three months, but they also occur when no term is set and interest starts to accrue right from the beginning, e.g. in KKS 26:8f. and *71:15f., while in AKT 3, 20:16 it is recorded as the exact date when a payment was made.

229. Kt 92/k 180 (1-138-92)

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

A debt-note from the year REL 82 about 15 shekels of silver due by Malaba, payable within 3 weeks, with a clause on default interest. Ennam-Suen promises to protect the debtor against claims by the sons of Aššur-ṭāb.

	15 GÍN KÙ.B. ša-ru-pá-am i-še-/er Ma-lá-ba En-na-/Sú-/in i-šu iš-tù	15 shekels of refined silver Malaba owes to Ennam-Suen. From
5	ITU.KAM Hu-bu-ur li-mu-um Šu-da-a DUMU En-na-nim a-na 3 ha-am-ša-tim	month VI, eponymy of Šudaya, son of Ennānum he will pay
l.e.	i-ša-qál	within 3 weeks.
rev.	šu-ma lá iš-qúl	If he does not pay
11	ki-ma a-wa-at kà-ri-im ší-ib-tám ú-ša-áb šu-ma	he will add interest according to the regulation of the colony. If the sons
15	DUMU A-šūr-DÙG a-na Ma-lá-ba i-tù-ru	of Aššur-ṭāb raise a claim against Malaba
u.e.	En-na-Sú-in ú-ba-áb-šu	Ennam-Suen will clear him.
l.e.	IGI Puzur₄-A-šūr	Before Puzur-Aššur,
21	IGI Aššur-du-gu₅-ul	before Aššur-dugul.

Notes

4-19. This clause suggests that Ennam-Suen had somehow taken over (by cession or sale or as guarantor) a debt originally owed by Malaba to Aššur-ṭāb and inherited by the latter's son. Since about a dozen "sons of Aššur-ṭāb" and various persons called Aššur-ṭāb figure in texts of the archive (two different ones have sealed *229), it is impossible to identify the one figuring here.

230. Kt 92/k 169 (1-129-92)

A slightly damaged, unopened envelope, containing the record of a debt of 12 shekels of silver owed to Ennam-Suen by Aššur-ṭāb, son of Idi-bāni, from the year REL 92.

	KIŠIB A-šūr-DÙG °DUMU A₂-hu-wa-/ qar	Seal of Aššur-ṭāb, son of Ahu-waqar, seal A
	KIŠIB Šu-A-nim DUMU A-ki-a-nim	seal of Šu-Anim, son of Akiānum,
	KIŠIB A-šūr-du-gul DUMU Im-da-hi	seal of Aššur-dugul, son of Imdī-ahī,
4	KIŠIB A-šūr-°DÙG₂ DUMU I-[d]i-ba-/ni	seal of Aššur-ṭāb, son of Idi-bāni, seal A
l.e.	12 °GÍN ₂ KÙ.B. i-[še-e]	Ennam-Suen has a claim
	seal B
rev.	A-šūr-DÙG DUMU I-dí-ba-ni	of 12 shekels of silver on
	seal C

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

	En-na-Sú-in i-šu	Aššur-ṭāb, son of Idi-bāni;
	ITU.KAM Na-<<ak>>-ar-ma-ak-/A-šur	month II/III,
	li-mu-um	eponymy of
10	E-lá-li DUMU I-ku-nim	Elalī, son of Ikūnum.
	ší-ib-tám ki-ma	He will add interest according
	a-wa-at kà-ri-im	to the regulation of
	seal C
u.e.	Kà-né-eš ú-ša-áb	of the Kanesh colony.
	seal C (upside down)
l.e..	seal C

Seals

seal A = CS 1243, fragment of an inscription in two vertical columns;

seal B = CS 1244

seal C = CS 1245

seal D = CS 1246

Notes

2-3. The names Akiānum and Imdī-ahī are unique. Aššur-dugul is also witness in *229:21.

4. Note the spelling I-dí-ba-ni, which shows that other spellings of this name with NI-dí- are to be read Ì-dí-bāni. See above, Ch. XI note 74, on I-dí-ba-ni as father of Ir'am-Aššur, also attested in *226A:1-2.

231. Kt 92/k 165 (1-125-92)

An unopened envelope containing a debt-note, from the year REL 96, recording a claim of 28 shekels silver by Ennam-Suen on Abu-šalim, son of Aššur-bēl-awātim, payable in three install-ments after in all 10 weeks.

	KIŠIB A-šur-be-el-a-wa-tim	Seal of Aššur-bēl-awātim,
	seal A
	KIŠIB Zu-ba KIŠIB I-dí-lštar DUMU	seal of Zuba, seal of Iddin-lštar, son of
	[A-šur-/ma-lik]	[Aššur-mālik,
	KIŠIB En-num-A-šur DUMU A-šur-UTU ^š	seal of Ennum-Aššur, son of Aššur-šamšī,
	KIŠIB Abu-ša-lim DUMU A-šur-be-el-	seal of Abu-šalim, son of Aššur-bēl-awātim.
	a-/wa-tim
5	1/3 ma-na 8 GÍN KÙ. B. ša-ru-pá-am	28 shekels of refined silver
	i-šé-er A-bu-ša-lim DUMU	Abu-šalim, son of Aššur-bēl-awātim,
	A-šur-be-el-a-wa-tim	owes to Ennam-Suen.
	seal B
	En-na-Sú-in i-šu iš-tù	From the week of
	ha-mu-uš-tim ša kà-šī-im	the official who took over from
l.e.	ša qá-té A-šur-ma-lik	from Aššur-mālik,
	seal C
11	ú En-na-Sú-in ITU.KAM ma-hu-ur-/l-lí	and Ennam-Suen, month IV,
rev.	li-mu-um ša qá-té A-šur-na-/da	eponymy of the successor of Aššur-nādā,
	DUMU Puzur-A-na 8 GÍN	son of Puzur-Anna, he will pay 8 shekels

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

	seal C
	KÙ.B. a-na 3 ha-am-ša-tim	within 3 weeks,
	i-ša-qal 10 GÍN KÙ.B. a-na	10 shekels within 6 weeks
15	6 ha-am-ša-tim i-ša-qal 10 GÍN	he will pay, and 10 shekels he will
	wa-ar-kà-tám a-na 10 ha-am-ša-tim	pay later, within another 10 weeks.
	i-ša-qal šu-ma i-na u₄-me-šu	If he does not pay
	ma-al-ú-tim lá iš-qú-ul	when his term is over
	ki-ma seal D	he will add < x > interest
20	a-wa-at kà-ri-im °i₂-ITU.KA[M]	per month in accordance with
	ší-ib-tám ú-ša-áb	the regulation of the colony.
u.e.	KÙ.BABBAR	The silver is
	seal A
	ik-ri-bu ša A-šur	temple fund of Aššur.
le.e.	seal D
ri.e	seal A

Seals

seal A = CS 825 = Kt n/k 2030, must be the seal of the debtor, Abu-šalim, son of Aššur-bēl-awātim, because the owners of the three other seals can be identified.

seal B = CS 859 = Kt e/k 156c = BIN 4, pl. 85b (= Teissier no. 181, on the rev. of the envelope of BIN 4, 186 = EL 91), the seal of Aššur-bēl-awātim, witness in our text, in BIN 4, 186, and in Kt e/k 156:2, published in ArAn 7 (2004) 49 and 54, where, however, the seal impressions are invisible on the photo.

seal C = CS 363 = Kt n/k 1716E, a text published (not mentioned in N. Özgüç 2006) by Çeçen 1998a, 120, recording a debt owed by an Anatolian couple to two Assyrians and dated to eponymy year REL 98. The seal must be that of Iddin-lštar, the only common sealer of both records.

seal D = CS 518, seal of Ennum-Aššur, son of Aššur-šamšī; the same man occurs in *144:89. L. 22 is written over the impression of seal

D, over the line which separates the two registers of this seal.

Notes

20. Probably a mistake or a unsuccessful erasure, since “per month” without mention of the rate, “1 ½ shekel”, is unusual and the reference to the regulation of the kārum makes both superfluous.

Ennam-Suen as debtor232. Kt 92/k 164 (1-124-92)

A contract in an unopened envelope, dated to the year REL 81, about a silver debt of Ennam-Suen and Āl-tāb, with clauses on interest and joint liability of both debtors, but without mentioning the name of the creditor.

	seal A
	KIŠIB Pí-la-ah-lštar DUMU I-bi₄-sú-a	Seal of Pílah-lštar, son of Ibisua,
	KIŠIB Šu-ma-li-bi₄-A-šur	seal of Šumma-libbi-Aššur,

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

	DUMU Ku-ús-ku-sí-im	son of Kuskusum,
	KIŠIB En-na-Sú-in	DUMU A-mur-^dUTU
	seal of Ennam-Suen, son of Amur-Šamaš,
5	KIŠIB A-al-DÙG DUMU A-mur-^dUTU	seal of Āl-ṭāb, son of Amur-Šamaš,
	seal B
l.e.	ša hu-bu-ul	(to the effect) that the debt of
	seal B
	En-na-Sú-in	Ennam-Suen and
rev.	seal C
	ù A-al-DÙG me-er-e' A-mur-^dUTU	Āl-ṭāb, sons of Amur-Šamaš,
	3½ ma-na 5 GÍN KÙ.B.	is 3½ minas 5 shekels of
10	ša-ru-pu-um iš-tù	refined silver. From
	ha-mu-uš-tim ša	the week of
	A-šūr-i-mi-tí ù A-mur-lštar	Aššur-imitī and Amur-lštar
	a-na 1 ma-na-im	they will add
	seal D
u.e.	2 GÍN.TA i-na ITU.KAM	per 1 mina 2 shekels
15	ši-ib-tám	as interest.
	seal D
	ú-šú-bu KÙ.B.	For the silver
l.e.	i-na qá-qá-ad šál-mi-šu-nu	they are jointly liable.
	ra-ki-is ITU.KAM ša sà-ra-tim	Month II,
	seal A
	li-mu-um ša - qá-té	eponymy of the one who
20	Sú-kà-lí-a il-qé-ú	took over from Sukkaliya.
ri.e.	seal A

Seals

seal A = CS 1237

seal B = CS 1238, inscription: En-na-Sú-in^o / DUMU ^dA-šūr-U[TU], cf. l. 4.

seal C = CS 381 = Kt n/k 1729B, 1733A, 1879C. The common sealer of the last three texts (information provided by Ayse Karaduman) is Puzur-šadu'e, son of A-li-dí, but he is absent on our envelope. A second sealer, common to Kt n/k 1733 and 1879, is Pilahāya, son of Ilī-pī-ušur, and unless we assume that CS 381 had a new owner, he might be the man who sealed our text, where his name is written as Pilah-lštar, son of Ib/pisua. But this name is written on a different seal, CS 1247 = *226 seal B. Non liquet.

seal D = CS 1239, inscription: [Šu]-ma-li-bi-A-[šūr] / DUMU A-ta-a. The text on the envelope identifies this witness as son of Kuskusum, a patronym also attested for him in CCT 5, 40b:14-15. The occurrence of a Kuskusum, father of Ataya, in BIN 4, 199:7, suggests that Šumma-libbi-Aššur used the seal of his grandfather and that Kuskusum was a nickname of Ataya.

Notes

3. Indented on the envelope.

4-5, 8. The envelope carries the imprint of a seal (B) inscribed with "Ennam-Suen, son of Aššur-šamšī", but among the sealers there is Ennam-Suen, son of Amur-Šamaš (cf. lines 7-8)!

10-12. The same double hamuštum, during the same year, occurs in Prag I 427:37'f.

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

14. The interest amounts to 7 1/6 shekels of silver, probably, although this is not stated, per month. This interpretation is necessary because no due date is mentioned.

19-21. See for this rare occurrence of the full expression for mentioning an eponym's successor, which requires emendation to iqqātē, KEL 29⁴⁶ and 32, comment on eponym 80 (Kt a/k 473 has išbutu instead of ilqe'u). It occurs also in Kt 87/k 330:11-12 and note in particular Kt k/k 65:9-11 (courtesy of K. Hecker), līmum ša iqqātē I. DUMU K. ilaqqe'u, both dated to month XII.

233. Kt 92/k 163 (1-123-92)

An unopened envelope containing an undated quittance that records that a debt claim for silver, identified as ikribū, which the sons of Ilam-kurub (after their father's death?) had acquired on Ennam-Suen, son of Amur-Šamaš, is not longer valid. The debt has been paid to one of them, Hanana (see I. 4), who apparently had been unable to return Ennam-Suen's debt-note and assumes the obligation to clear the ex-debtor if it turns up.

	KIŠIB Ka-ku-a DUMU I-dī-lštar seal A	Seal of Kakua, son of Iddin-lštar
	KIŠIB Puzur^d-lškur DUMU I-dī-lštar	seal of Puzur-Adad, son of Iddin-lštar
	KIŠIB Na-ra-am-A-šūr DUMU I-dī-ba-ni	seal of Narām-Aššur, son of Idi-bāni,
	KIŠIB Ha-na-na DUMU DINGIR- kur-ub	seal of Hanana, son of Ilam-kurub.
5	½ ma-na 5 GÍN KÙ.B. ša-ru-pá-am ša ik-ri-bi : ša me-er-ú DINGIR- kur-ub i-šé-er En-na-Sú-in seal B (upside down)	25 shekels of refined silver, being temple property, which the sons of Ilam-kurub had acquired as claim on
	DUMU A-mur^d-utu ir-ší-ú-ni l.e. seal C (upside down)	Ennam-Suen, son of Amur-Šamaš,
	ki-ma me-er-e DINGIR- kur-ub KÙ.B. rev. seal C (upside down)	Hanana, representing the sons of Ilam-kurub,
10	ù ší-ba-sú Ha-na-na ša-bu ṭup-pu-um ša ½ ma-na 5 GÍN KÙ.B. ša e-li-a-ni sà-ar šu-ma me-er-ú DINGIR- kur-ub a-na En-na- i-tù-ru-ú Ha-na-na ú-ba-áb-šu [Sú-in seal D	is satisfied with the silver and its interest. The tablet (of the claim) of 25 shekels of silver that turns up is invalid. If the sons of Ilam-kurub raise a claim against Ennam-Suen, Hanana will clear
15	KÙ.B. ša IGI En-na-nim ù DUMU °x]*	him. (It is) silver that they gave him
u.e.	seal A	in the presence of Ennānum
le.e	i-dī-nu-šu-ni seal D	and of the son of
r.e.	seal B

Seals

seal A: CS 994 = Kt g/k 409. This seal is also used on KKS 4b as seal B (p. 164 no. 11) and on the fragment ICK 2, 189 (drawing Ka 519 on pl. CXII), which is its lower edge. Its owner is Hanana, son of Ilam-kurub (KKS 4b:1, where ^dlštar is a mistake for

XIII. ENNAM-SUEN (211-234)

DINGIR-lam!). It also figures as seal A on Kt 86/k 175, where it used by Hanana's brother, Aššur-tukultī, son of Ilam-kurub.

seal B: CS 1235

seal C: CS 1148 = *207B = *226A, seal of Narām-Aššur, son of l-dí-bani, whose name *226A: 1-2 gives as Ir-am-Aššur, son of l-dí-ba-ni, and *207, in the address on the envelope of a letter as Ir-ma-Aššur (see introduction to Ch. XI and note 74). The seal must also be impressed on Kt a/k 462b, where Ir-ma-Aššur is witness.

seal D: CS 1236 = *222B, inscription: Puzur₄-d¹ISKUR / DUMU l-dí-lštar

Notes

1. Not attested, perhaps identical to Ku-ku-a son of Iddin-lštar, witness in Chantre 10:18.

3-4. Narām-Aššur is the same man as Ir'am-Aššur, see above, the note on seal C. Hanana figures as arbitrator in KKS 4A:17, B:1.

6. Note *231:23, where Ennam-Suen has a claim for ikribū (28 shekels of silver) on Abu-šalim.

8. The verb rašā'um, "to acquire", very rare in descriptions of debts (e.g. EL 182:10 and TC 1, 15:14), suggests that the claim was based on what Ennam-Suen owed to their father and which in the settlement of his accounts had been assigned to his heirs.

15-16. In this way Ennam-Suen has on record in the presence of which witnesses Hanana had paid the debt.

A settlement of accounts

234. Kt 92/k 125 (1-87-92)

A settlement of accounts concerning copper between Adad-bāni and Ennam-Suen.

	d¹ISKUR-ba-ni	Adad-bāni
	ù En-na-Sú-in	and Ennam-Suen
	ni-kà-sí i-sí-ú-ma	settled accounts and
	48½ [ma]-n)a URUDU	Ennam-Suen
5	En-n[a]-Sú-in	will pay
l.e.	i-°ša-qa_l	48½ minas of copper
rev.	31½ ma-na URUDU	and Adad-bāni
	d¹ISKUR-ba-ni	will pay
	i-ša-qa_l	31½ minas of copper.
10	IGI Puzur₄-A-šur	Witnessed by Puzur-Aššur.

Comment

This settlement probably reflects some kind of a joint venture (an investment or a purchase), the total costs or expenses of which amounted to 80 minas of copper. Each of the partners (I cannot identify Adad-bāni) has to pay his share, rather odd figures, almost 60% and 40%, which suggests that their investments in the transaction were not of equal size.